FINANCE.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY APPEALA
MEMPHIS, September 15, 1868.
Our discount houses report exchange on all points abundant, and rates are gradually tend-ing downwards. The demand, though improving, is not equal to the supply. New York sight is taken at par and selling at $35c pre-mium. On other points, such as Louisville. St. Louis, etc., the buying rate is about the same, while hie premium is the outside sell-ing rate. New Orleans sight is offered occasionally at 1/2 discount and sold at par. The operations in City Bonds to-day were limited. A few thousand dollars were bought from the City Treasurer at 5%, and some held in private hands were offered at 50% g51c with-

Memphis and Charleston Stock is in some demand at 55c, but all we could hear of was held at 55c. Other stocks and bonds are scarce with no especial demand from any quarter. City scrip is scarce, or rather there is but lift-the upon the market. Dealers are buying all offered at 72g74c, and sall at 76g80c, as to County Warrants are firm and in demand at way.

55c by dealers. Selling at 55,50c in a small

Police Scrip is scarce and tending upwards. There is an effort making by holders of this serip to run it up, which will, we think, be suc-cessful. Dealers buy readily at 80 gaze. Seiling Gold opened in New York at 145 e and closed at 144 c. We have no sales to report; life was nominally the buying rate at the opening here,

F. A. Davis, Esq., President of the First National Bank, returned yesterday from an ex-tended tour through the North. He evidently proved in health, and was warmly greeted by Very Lowest Figures!

Usually during the months of September and October, says a New York circular, the banks sell a portion of their governments, to enable them the better to accommodate their customers, and mercantile investors realize more or less for their own financial convenience; while dealers find it inconvenient, during activity in money, to carry large amounts of bonds. These influences are always favorable to a yielding of quotations during the portod covered by the next few weeks. For several weeks past domestic bondholders have been finestiled through the agitation of financial schemes adverse to the waite of bonds, and have sold a considerable aggregate of securities, although for the moment, there is an abstement of this shock to confidence. A very large amount of the confidence. A very large amount of the

to confidence. A very large amount of the bonds thus thrown upon the market has been slipped to Europe, on speculation, and an unusually heavy supply has accomulated on the hands of dealers. Both the German bankers and some of the leading dealers have thus become interested in holding up the price of bonds; and the market is in this way first thouly sustained at quotations which do not accord with the average view of home investors. The recent enormous exports of bonds appear to have been so much instigated by the prospect of their being shootbed by the German market, as by a desire to avert the thread ening result of speculations in gold early in July, based upon the earlier shipments of bonds. The general tenor of our advices leads us to conclude that no large portion of these consignments has yet been realized upon, and it resands by prospect that he harge portion of the wholly distributed abroad, or a good portion will have to be returned. So long as this uncertainty hangs over the market, the value of bonds must be kept in an unsettled and unnatural condition. There is at prosect, undoubted by an extraordinary demand on the continent, for all kinds of securities; which would seem to be favorable to the absortation of this new supply of five-twenties; but, so far this furor does not appear to have run upon our securities, while the apeculation, and may, any, be checked by a violent resction. At the moment, there is a commedicable which may possibly induce a technological supply coming from the interior renders this impropriation in quotations; but the steady supply coming from the interior renders this impropriation, has been checked by causes which could

d and decline in gold, carry in check the upward tendency of gold, based upon the prospect of a foreign drain of specie, these operators made further immense shipments of bonds. The total amount of securities thus exported during luly and August is variously estimates at the securities of the se from $90,000,00 to $15,000,000. The cope started by large supply of exchanges not only sequent agents of baring Brothers to ren' sabled the boy of the Alaska money in sover $5,000, over the adverse trade results, but bridged temporarily at least, seamce and averted. This unexpected resource and averted the ever Germ of the premium; unless, however, Germ of the permanently this extraording supply of bonds, this change in the course of the market may be ultimately reversed.
